LEADERSHIP AWARD

David C. Seaberg, MD, CPE, FACEP

Dr. Seaberg graduated with a BA in chemistry from Washington University in St. Louis, and he attended the University of Minnesota School of Medicine. Between his second and third year of medical school, he completed a research fellowship and then went on to complete his emergency medicine residency at the University of Pittsburgh.

He launched his leadership career arc, first as a research director at the University of Pittsburgh, then as residency director at the University of Florida, Jacksonville and subsequently chair of emergency medicine at the University of Florida, Gainesville.

In 2017, he became the inaugural dean at the University of Tennessee College of Medicine Chattanooga, also serving as chair of emergency medicine and senior vice president of physician integration at the Erlanger Health System.

Dr. Seaberg was elected to the ACEP Board of Directors and became president in 2011 and chair of the Board in 2012. His servant leadership style led him to take on the challenge of helping US Acute Care Solutions re-establish the Summa Department of Emergency Medicine as chair and executive vice president. He has been fortunate to work with some of the most dedicated and talented emergency physicians and leaders in the world. This has helped him start six emergency medicine residencies and three departments of emergency medicine during his career.

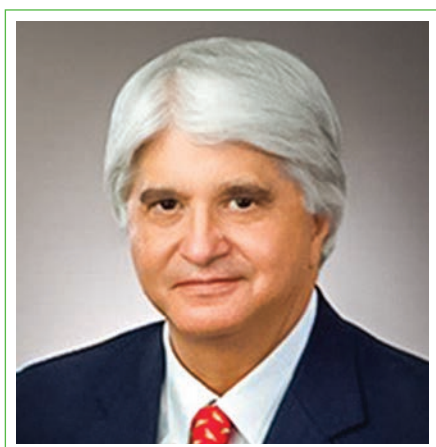

Dr. Seaberg was elected to the ACEP Board of Directors and became president in 2011 and chair of the Board in 2012.

OUTSTANDING CONTRIBUTION TO EMERGENCY MEDICINE AWARD

John J. Rogers, MD, CPE, FACEP

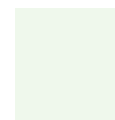

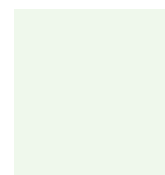

Dr. Rogers attended Ohio University on a swimming scholarship where he studied architecture for two years. He transferred to Augustana College in Rock Island Illinois, also on a swimming scholarship, and graduated with a degree in biology. He completed a surgical internship at the University of Iowa College of Medicine. He finished his surgical residency at the Medical Center of Central Georgia in Macon, GA.

Dr. Rogers began working in emergency departments in 1979 part time, which continued during his practice as a general/trauma surgeon. He was on the surgical faculty of Mercer University teaching residents, but also performing stem cell research, and was one of the first in the area to perform advanced laparoscopic procedures. Finding his heart belonged to emergency medicine, he began full-time emergency medicine in 1994, mainly in rural and small hospitals.

Dr. Rogers served as president of the medical staff on two occasions. He is currently a member of the Board of Directors of the Bibb County Medical Society and serves as their vice president. He is a member of the Medical Association of Georgia's Council on Legislation, and is a delegate to the MAG House of Delegates. He is the current ED medical director at Coliseum Northside in Macon.

Dr. Rogers assumed several leadership roles in the Georgia Chapter, including chapter president and remains on the GCEP Board of Directors to this day. He has served on several ACEP committees, and chaired both the Rural and Workforce Sections, and founded the Telemedicine Section. He was elected to the ACEP Board of Directors in 2011 and served two terms.

He is a member of the Medical Association of Georgia's Council on Legislation, and is a delegate to the MAG House of Delegates. He is the current ED medical director at Coliseum Northside in Macon.

LEGACY AWARD

Peter M. Fahrney, MD, FACEP(E)

As a SeaBee medical officer, it was in Vietnam, working as a volunteer in the 3rd Marine Division MASH unit that Dr. Fahrney focused his attention to trauma and saving lives. Later, he was appointed as the command medical officer for the 12 battalions of Seabees that made up the Atlantic Command (COMCBLANT) involving the oversight of the individual battalion departments and preparing them for combat conditions.

At that time, the US Navy did not recognize the importance of specialized emergency training, so Dr. Fahrney sought and landed a position at Suburban Hospital in Bethesda, MD, where he remained his entire 32-year career. He was excited to find that there were others of like mind, and he soon attended meetings in Arlington and Alexandria, VA with the “founding fathers” of emergency medicine. Soon, the American College of Emergency Physicians was established.

Once he joined the College in 1969, he was “all in” and served in many capacities. After the formative “Constitutional Convention” at the first meeting of the new “Council” in Washington, DC, in 1973, Dr. Fahrney was elected as the first speaker of the Council and presided over the tumultuous first meeting of the Council. He was also elected that year to the Board of Directors, where he served for two terms.

During his membership in ACEP, he has served on many committees and assisted in getting the acceptance of the specialty of emergency medicine within the American Medical Association (AMA).

“It is the purpose of our lives to make a difference and cause a better world,” is the credo which has guided him during his exciting career.

AWARD FOR EXCELLENCE IN HEALTH POLICY

Steven J. Stack, MD, MBA, FACEP

Dr. Stack spent seven years at The Ohio State University in medical school and emergency medicine residency. Early on, he became involved in the American Medical Association beginning another journey with an unimagined destination.

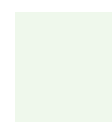

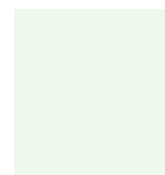

Dr. Stack's career has been a combination of clinical practice and leadership. In 2006, he became the first board-certified emergency physician ever elected to the American Medical Association Board of Trustees and served in 2015-2016 as the AMA's youngest president since 1854.

As his journey in AMA leadership concluded in 2017, he completed an MBA program at the University of Tennessee and became an adjunct professor teaching health policy and advocacy.

Then, in an unexpected twist of fate, he was appointed Kentucky Commissioner for Public Health in February 2020, just weeks before the COVID-19 pandemic swept across the nation and upended the world. Dr. Stack's life journey, though, has prepared him well for today's challenges.

Throughout the journey, he's aspired to be a servant leader. And, along the way, one of his great joys in life has been the many people who have so dearly shaped him, kept him grounded, and shared so many laughs at his own quirks and oddities.

Sharon E. Mace, MD, FACEP

Dr. Mace attended Syracuse University on a scholarship, majoring in chemistry. During college, she worked as a nurse's aide at the county home. She attended medical school at Upstate Medical Center in Syracuse, NY, did a pediatric residency at Rainbow Babies and Children's Hospital in Cleveland, Ohio. After completing a pediatric cardiology fellowship, she received a grant from the American Heart Association and did an additional two years in pediatric cardiology research during the day, while working in the emergency department on evenings and weekends.

During her time in Ohio, Dr. Mace served on the Ohio ACEP Board of Directors and chaired the Education Committee. She did the first medical helicopter flight for the first air medical transport in the state.

After seven years, Dr. Mace returned to New York to be near family. She worked in various positions including ED director at Saratoga Springs, ED director of St. Mary's Hospital, and as pediatrician and chair of the emergency department at St. Elizabeth Hospital. She started the 911 dispatch for Monroe County, was EMS medical director for Monroe and Saratoga Springs Ambulance Services and worked with Monroe Community College to establish an EMT/ paramedic training program. She was elected to the NY ACEP Board of Directors.

After about a decade, academic emergency medicine again beckoned, and Dr. Mace became director of pediatric education and quality improvement and director of the observation unit at the Cleveland Clinic. She is currently director of research and assistant director of EMS.

AWARD FOR OUTSTANDING CONTRIBUTION IN EDUCATION

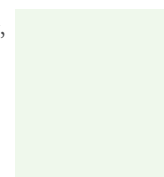

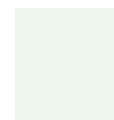

Tracy G. Sanson, MD, FACEP

Dr. Sanson is a board-certified emergency physician who practices clinically as an independent contractor. Dr. Sanson heads her own consulting firm, specializing in leadership training, personal development, faculty development, and wellness.

She has served in several and varied leadership positions with the Society for Academic Emergency Medicine (SAEM), the Council of Residency Directors (CORD), and the American College of Emergency Physicians (ACEP). She has been a member of the ACEP faculty for many years, including for the ACEP Teaching Fellowship and the Emergency Department Directors Academy. She is a past president of the Government Services Chapter of ACEP and has been a Board of Directors member and past chair of the Education Committee for the Florida Chapter of ACEP.

Dr. Sanson completed her medical degree and EM residency training at the University of Illinois at Chicago. She has held director positions in the US Air Force, the University of South Florida, and TeamHealth. She was education director for the Joint Military Medical Centers Emergency Medicine program (now SAUSHEC) in San Antonio, Texas, and the University of South Florida Emergency Medicine program in Tampa. Dr. Sanson has won several teaching, leadership, and mentoring awards. She is a career educator in emergency medicine and leadership in health care.

CHAPTER ADVOCATE AWARD

Bob Ramsey, CAE

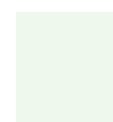

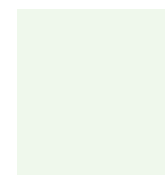

Fifty years ago, Bob Ramsey, the retired executive director of the Virginia College of Emergency Physicians (VACEP), entered association management as a way to fulfill his passion for helping others. As a leader, talent scout, and teacher, Mr. Ramsey found happiness and success facilitating business groups working together to make a difference. A lifelong learner, Mr. Ramsey has been a certified association executive for 42 years. Bob's leadership was recognized by the Virginia Society of Association Executives (Outstanding Association Executive 2018), his US Navy flight class (Regimental Commander), his college (Outstanding Senior Award, Alumni Achievement Award), and his fraternity (National Achievement Award).

VACEP hired Mr. Ramsey in 2013 to increase their position and influence in Virginia's House of Medicine. VACEP's leadership adopted a new, cost-saving chapter business model resulting in a substantial increase in revenue. Physician engagement expanded as the chapter nearly doubled in size. He also partnered with ACEP to find ways of supporting chapters with small, part-time executive directors.

Mr. Ramsey is honored to stand in memory of Diane Bollman, whose legacy of helping others lives on forever with ACEP's Diane Bollman Chapter Advocate Award.

Michael McCrea, MD, FACEP

Dr. McCrea earned his MD from Medical College of Ohio at Toledo in 2004. He has been an ACEP member since 2004, when he began his emergency medicine residency at The Ohio State University.

After finishing residency in 2007, he joined a large community practice in Mansfield, OH, where he served as quality director and assistant medical director. In 2009, he joined the emergency medicine residency as core faculty at St. Vincent's in Toledo, becoming the program's director of simulation education. He became assistant program director in 2012 and has received the "Attending of the Year" Award from the residents.

Dr. McCrea returned to the community again as medical director of rural Wood County Hospital in Bowling Green, OH from 2013-14 while supervising residents in the community practice environment. In 2020, he became associate program director for the St. Vincent program.

He formally became involved with Ohio ACEP in 2010 through the Chapter's Leadership Development Academy. He has served as faculty for the written and oral board review courses and chapter authors for the Carol Rivers board review books. He is a current Ohio ACEP Board member and served two terms as chapter president. For his successful advocacy efforts on Ohio House Bill 7 for liability reform to change Ohio's "I'm Sorry" statute, Dr. McCrea was awarded the Ohio ACEP Advocacy Award in 2019.

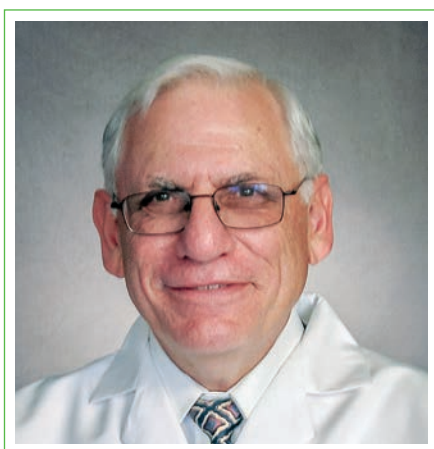

He began his service to national ACEP also in 2010 as an alternate councillor for the Ohio Chapter and has served as a councillor ever since, serving on both Council Reference and Steering Committees. For his early service to Council, Dr. McCrea received the Council Horizon Award in 2014. Most recently, he was selected to lead the Task Force on Council Size in 2019. In addition to Council service, he also serves national ACEP on the State Legislative and Regulatory Committee and the Bylaws Committee.

Honorary Membership AWARD

Pat Hughes, CMP

Ms. Hughes began her career at ACEP in 1988 as an accounting assistant in the finance department. She spent four years in that role until moving to the educational meetings department as planning and implementation coordinator. In that position, Ms. Hughes worked with faculty for ACEP's annual Scientific Assembly and many other educational meetings in relation to hands-on skills labs and collecting and reviewing their syllabi.

Later, her role was expanded to include meeting planning for the Emergency Department Directors Academy. In 2003, Ms. Hughes earned her designation as a certified meeting professional (CMP), demonstrating her knowledge in the meetings and conventions industry.

In 2009, Ms. Hughes shifted her skills to the academic affairs department working on the Research Forum, EMBRS, and Teaching Fellowship programs alongside ACEP staff members Marjorie Geist and later Loren Rives. She was promoted to the Academic Affairs meetings manager in 2014, where she remained until her retirement on July 1, 2020.

Ms. Hughes' career at ACEP was a rewarding, fulfilling experience where she worked very closely with many ACEP members over the years who brought education to life for emergency physicians. The members and staff who worked with Ms. Hughes throughout her 32 years will miss her sense of humor and laughter but, most of all, her friendship.

Jane Scott, ScD, MSN

Dr. Scott has worked in the emergency care settings for years, starting as a nurse in the Duke University emergency department before ambulances had radios (1972-74), the Hillsborough, NC Volunteer EMS squad (1974), and then in the Johns Hopkins Emergency Department as a nurse practitioner. She presented her first research abstract at the University Association of Emergency Medicine meeting (1981), which was followed by numerous other emergency care publications.

After obtaining a doctorate from Hopkins School of Public Health, Dr. Scott joined AHRQ as a program officer and developed a grant portfolio focused on acute cardiac care in prehospital, ED, and critical care settings. Returning to the academic setting, in 1995 she joined the UMD Charles Mc Mathias National Study Center for Trauma and EMS, followed by serving as the research director of the Program in Trauma at the R Adams Cowley Shock Trauma. During this time, she was central to EMS and trauma care development and research training for fellows.

In 2005, Dr. Scott joined the NIH as director, Office of Research Training in the Division of Cardiovascular Sciences, National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute (NHLBI). That same year, ACEP and SAEM leadership began working with the NIH to improve research funding and training in emergency medicine. She recognized the need for research training, and in 2008 started to create the NHLBI K12 program in emergency care research. Since then, she has managed the K12 program and worked extensively with the emergency medicine researchers at the eight training programs that have trained over 50 K12 scholars.

She has truly enjoyed working with the leaders in emergency medicine and has been thrilled to see the field of emergency medicine research blossom.

Hugh Dean Wilkerson, JD, MBA, CAE

A native Arkansan, Mr. Wilkerson has spent most of his life in Texas. He earned a bachelor's degree at the University of Arkansas, an MBA from the University of California at Berkeley, and a law degree from the University of Texas, where he was an editor of the Texas Law Review.

In the 1980s, Mr. Wilkerson practiced corporate law with a large Dallas law firm. During this time, he also served on the City Council and as mayor pro tem of his community of Coppell, Texas.

In 1990, Dean became the general counsel of Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD). Three years later, he became the national CEO of MADD and led the organization during the period of its greatest effectiveness in reducing drunk driving deaths, assisting victims of this violent crime, and preventing underage drinking.

He left MADD to become the executive director of ACEP. Mr. Wilkerson is an advocate at heart. He has met with several presidents and many governors, senators and members of Congress. He is gratified that ACEP has seen growth in its media advocacy, legislative advocacy, and all parts of its operation during his tenure.

Mr. Wilkerson feels fortunate to have helped make a difference in advancing emergency care. Being part of the emergency medicine family has been the most enjoyable period of his 40-year career.

He is thankful to God for the blessings and opportunities he has had. In retirement, he looks forward to spending more time with his family, teaching adult Bible classes at his church, continuing to serve on the boards of a few philanthropic organizations, and traveling for pleasure to some exotic places.

Outstanding Contribution IN EMS AWARD

James M. Atkins, MD

Dr. Atkins graduated from the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School in Dallas, Texas, and performed his internship and residency in internal medicine and his subspecialty training in cardiology at Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas. Dr. Atkins has had a long-term interest in cardiac arrest and the care of acute myocardial infarction having written several papers and chapters on these issues.

In 1972, he was asked to supervise part-time the internal medicine portion of the emergency department at Parkland Hospital, which he did for five years when he convinced the system to hire the first full-time staff for the emergency department. He has been involved in the American Heart Association (AHA) at the national and local levels, having worked on several revisions of the standards for resuscitation from cardiac arrest and the management of acute myocardial infarction. For the AHA, he led teams to set up training programs for the European Red Cross and led a team to China to set up CPR and ACLS training networks with the Chinese Red Cross. Dr. Atkins also has been involved with the American College of Cardiology Emergency Care Committee for many years.

Dr. Atkins was medical director of the paramedic system in Dallas County for 27 years. During those years, he trained 6,000 basic EMTs and 5,400 paramedics with the staff that he hired. He was chair of the accreditation body that accredits paramedic training programs (Committee on Accreditation of Emergency Medical Services Professions) having been awarded the Dan Storer Award for outstanding volunteer.

He has been a professor of internal medicine and emergency medicine at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School and works as a cardiologist at Parkland Memorial Hospital. He has received special awards for his service in the area from the American Heart Association, the Food and Drug Administration, and the NHLBI, along with many awards from EMS entities and ACEP.

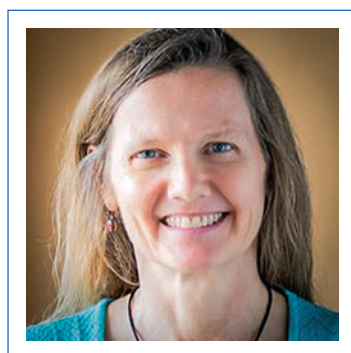

Dr. Atkins is a member of the Texas Hall of Fame for EMS. He was involved with the National Heart Attack Alert Program of the NHLBI for the entire 12 years of the program and has chaired the Access to Care Subcommittee and the Executive Committee of the NHAAP. This program established the goal of 60 minutes to treatment for myocardial infarction.

CONGRATS

2020 ACEP AWARD WINNERS AND NEW FELLOWS!

Leading providers deserve leading software.

Shift Admin provides the highest-awarded physician scheduling software to forward-thinking customers helping you save time and optimize fair schedules—all backed by people you can trust.

Reduce schedule creation time by 60-70%. Generate a fully-optimized, fully-staffed provider schedule in minutes.

For two years in a row, KLAS Research has named Shift Admin the "Category Leader for Scheduling: Physician" in their annual Best in KLAS report.

Get support when you need it. Our support team has a 5-minute average response time — the most responsive team in the industry.

Visit us at shiftadmin.com & let us show you how our award-winning platform works.
