

Arun is an Emergency Physician at North York General Hospital in Toronto (a large community academic hospital at the University of Toronto) and a Professor in the Division of Emergency Medicine, DFCM, at the University of Toronto. For the last several years, he has added weekly work managing patients in the Minor Fracture Clinic and assisting on ortho trauma cases. These led him to create an ED orthopedics course which he has taught over 600 times in 10 countries to over 15,000 colleagues. He has won over 20 teaching awards and has written book chapters, and ACEPNow articles, appeared on multiple podcasts, and given over 100 international lectures, all focused on emergency department orthopedics.
