

Brianna Klucher, MD is a Clinical Instructor in the Department of Emergency Medicine. She is completing a Faculty Development Fellowship with an emphasis on Medical Education and serving as a Chief Resident at the University of Maryland Emergency Medicine Program. Dr. Klucher completed her residency in Emergency Medicine at the University of Maryland and previously completed medical schooling at the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences. Dr. Klucher's interests include medical education, wellness, and equitable treatment of patients and healthcare professionals. She has clinical interests in geriatric emergency medicine and has been recognized with speaking awards for lectures on end-of-life care.