

Debra Ravert, MD is an emergency physician and Assistant Professor of Emergency Medicine at Johns Hopkins University. Her work focuses on the intersection of acute care operations and health policy, with particular attention to emergency department boarding, surge response, and capacity planning within evolving payment models.

Dr. Ravert is actively engaged in state and national policy conversations through Maryland ACEP and the ACEP Federal Government Affairs Committee. She is particularly interested in how models such as AHEAD and Maryland's global budget framework shape frontline care delivery and system resilience. Her academic and leadership efforts aim to strengthen the voice of emergency physicians in policy development and healthcare system redesign.
