

Dr. Lowie completed Emergency Medicine residency at The University of Maryland Medical Center in June of 2022. She completed a faculty development fellowship and ACEP teaching fellowship while continuing as Chief resident in the department of Emergency Department. She currently works clinically at the university of Maryland Midtown campus. Her interests include medical education, simulation, and infectious diseases and she has given numerous national and international lectures, in addition to podcasts and publications, on these topics.